CERVERA'S PLAN TO ESCAPE.

(Copyright by the Associated Press.)

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 4, afternoon, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 5, by the Associated Press cutter boat Cynthia II, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6. Admiral Cervera held a consultation with his officers before sailing out of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, and by a small majority the move was agreed upon. The minority said that destruction was sure, as many of the firemen had mutinied and had not been in the fort were worn out by firing the guns in the shore batteries.

Early in the morning of the sortie careful observations were made of the west and east. Admiral Cervera decided upon taking the westward course with Manzanillo, Cienfuegos or if possible, Havana, the port to be reached. He would have gone just far enough to sight the sighting of a large transport fleet off Siboney and the appearance that a convoy of war vessels was still with the transports.

As a matter of fact there is no war vessel, armed or unarmed, converted yacht except the New York that could have intercepted Admiral Cervera's escape eastward. Navy officers are sure that the Spanish vessels could have disabled or sunk the New York and escaped had the eastward course been chosen.

It was feared for a time by many East Point officers and soldiers who were anxious lest the Vizcaya, the Almirante Oquendo and the Maria Teresa would be killed by the insurgents, who were seen in the chaparral near the beach. This could not be verified at this writing as to ascertain the extent of the loss to the Spanish fleet was obtainable.

It is claimed that one shell killed 100 men on the Vizcaya, striking the vessel forward aft.

CAPTURE OF THE CRISTOBAL COLON.

(Copyright by the Associated Press.)

Off Santiago de Cuba, Monday, July 4, 6 P. M., per the Associated Press cutter boat Cynthia II, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, Tuesday morning, July 5, by way of Kingston, Jamaica, July 6, 2 P. M. After a chase of sixty miles to the westward the Brooklyn closely followed by the Oregon, overhauled the Cristobal Colon after she had run ashore and hauled down her flag. Capt. Cook of the Brooklyn went on board of her and the commander of the Spanish cruiser came forward to surrender and was taken on board the New York, which came up outside after the Brooklyn and Oregon and completed the capture of the Cristobal Colon. The latter was not seriously damaged though she was struck several times by shots from the Brooklyn and Oregon.

During the chase a clever menoeuvre of Commodore Schley in heading the vessel off Cape Cruz, while the Cristobal Colon had taken a more southerly direction and thus gained greater distance to cover, rendered the Spaniard's escape impossible.

There seems to be no doubt that the Cristobal Colon and perhaps the other three Spanish armored cruisers would have escaped had it not been for the strategic action of Commodore Schley. The Brooklyn, his flagship, alone was in a position to attack the Spanish vessels as they left the harbor, and the commander accordingly turned directly toward them and engaged all four cruisers, inflicting great damage upon them.

The Oregon was the first to join the Brooklyn, and afterwards the Iowa, Texas and Vixen closed around the Spaniards, all pounding the evidently rattled Dons from the long range to the end of the fight. The Brooklyn, Oregon and Iowa received the most important part of the gunnery fire of the enemy.

One man, George Henry Ellis, was killed on board the Brooklyn. His head was blown off by a shell. Gunner Jones, J. Barnes was injured on board of the Brooklyn, and a shell struck half a dozen men, but no injury was done to any of the other American ships.

Washington, July 5. As a result of the cabinet meeting today instructions were sent by the President to Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter to confer together concerning a joint plan of attack upon the city of Santiago. Upon the outcome of this conference depends the line of action of the insurgent fleet. For the present the land bombardment by Gen. Shafter's forces has been deferred as the situation has been so completely changed by the annihilation of the Spanish fleet that it is manifestly wise for the land forces to await the co-operation of a bombardment from Admiral Sampson's fleet. Gen. Shafter's demand for a surrender of Santiago in the path of bombardment was made at 8.30 o'clock Sunday morning.

An hour later Admiral Cervera made his suicidal dash from the harbor resulting in a complete transformation of the naval and military conditions. Instead of a menacing Spanish fleet within the harbor the way has been cleared, save for the shore batteries, for the entrance of the American fleet up to the very waterfront of the city.

Up to the close of office hours today no word has come either to the war or navy departments so far as was disclosed as to what determination had been reached at the conference between Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson. It is the expectation of the authorities here that the conference will result in a determination by the admiral to take his fleet through the narrow neck of the harbor, in the way past the shore batteries and fortifications and take position before the city for bombardment. There is reason to believe that the instructions sent to Admiral Sampson at least conveyed the desire if not the order that he enter the harbor. But it is said that the admiral and the general continue to be the supreme officials in authority and their judgment will be taken in the final course to be adopted.

NO OBSTACLES IN THE WAY.

There is still to be no obstacle, so far as navigation is concerned to the entrance of the harbor by the American fleet. The Cristobal Colon, which entered the Merrimac not out of the harbor Sunday, drew 23 feet 3 inches, which is within seven inches of the draught of the battleships Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon, and is greater than that of the battleship Texas. Moreover, the navy department is known for the last ten days that the neck of the channel was open despite the sinking of the Merrimac, and that there was a clear, sandy bottom, seven fathoms deep, which may also be in our navy could sail. This removes all difficulty except through an unknown number of shore batteries. Little account is taken of the mines since the Spanish fleet passed over them. The Spaniards are in the habit of using contact mines, so that there is little likelihood of there being mines operated by electric connection with the shore. The forts and batteries have been badly weakened by the fire of the fleet, and while still a factor they are greatly disabled. Once on to the city the fleet, anchoring could combine in a terrible double fire. No less than 202 heavy guns would be trained from the American warships on the city and at the same time the light guns, which, it is believed are at the front of Shafter's line, would pile down a torrent of fire from that quarter. The siege guns throw shells of 135 pounds. Aside from them there are four Morton howitzers and a large number of smaller howitzers. These are in the heavy artillery, while the light artillery embraces a number of guns of all calibre combining the fire of the land and sea would be terrible in effect.

TO PUT OFF BOMBARDING.

The action of the foreign representatives at Santiago has been a good deal of a factor in deferring bombardment. It was known here today that one of Gen. Shafter's despatches carried that these representatives had joined in a request to him to put off the shelling of the city for another brief period until their respective consuls could be informed. This accounts for the departure of the foreign warships from Santiago harbor, and they are leaving many of the foreign residents in the perilous position of being within the bombardment line. The military of the consulate at Santiago has asked to be allowed to remain, but it has been reached the state department that the authorities feel that nothing of this nature will be allowed.

This state department today took occasion to dispel some of the Spanish illusions over the escape of Admiral Cervera's fleet. It seems that Madrid is not aware of the fact that the fleet made a good deal of the shelling of the Spanish batteries in the harbor. It says a telegram came from United States Minister Hunter at Caracas, saying the Spanish residents there were elated at the news of the destruction of Cervera's fleet. MILES BROOKLYN.

GEN. SHAFTER.

ALGER CONFERS WITH THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, July 5. Secretary Alger had a conference with the President today, having the White House at 10 o'clock. Together they discussed the events of yesterday at Santiago and the extensive operations to be undertaken before the city at most today, the operation of the truce built granted by Gen. Shafter in the interests of non-combatants. Secretary Alger, when asked for news, said he had nothing to communicate. He declined to discuss the reported junction of Pando's reinforcements with the Spanish forces in Santiago.

Secretary Long went over to confer with the President shortly after 10 o'clock. He had with him some despatches and other papers. Secretary Long announced at 10 o'clock that there were no new important advices at hand. Concerning the starting of Admiral Camara's fleet through the Suez canal as announced from Port Said, he said there was nothing official to that effect.

CENSOR SUPPRESSES PRESS DESPATCHES.

London, July 5. The despatches of the Associated Press telling of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, including the official accounts of the affair, have been telegraphed to Madrid. The despatch just received at the office here of the Associated Press from Madrid for transmission to the United States giving the Spanish version of the sortie shows that the Spanish cruisers had attempted the Associated Press despatches to the effect that they were regarded by the Spaniards as being incredible.

Senator in a Speech Makes a Notable Appeal Against any Policy of Territorial Expansion.

Washington, July 5. The debate on the Hawaiian resolutions was continued in the Senate. Three speeches were made, Mr. Hoar (Mass.) in favor of annexation, made a notable appeal against any policy of territorial expansion as a consequence of the war.

Mr. Lindsay (Ky.) opposed the resolutions, directing his attack principally against the most outspoken Mr. White (Cal.) and his speech in opposition.

Mr. Lindsay said that in refusing to consider the treaty and take any action which gives the authority to establish a form of government in the island we would take the government depending upon the will of the people to form the island government to the United States as it is now proposed to do with Cuba. His argument was that the treaty against the annexation resolutions upon constitutional grounds.

Mr. Lindsay's argument occupied more than two hours. At the conclusion Mr. Allen (Neb.) submitted his speech begun yesterday in opposition to annexation. He defended the opposition to annexation against the charge of being unpatriotic. Mr. White followed shortly before 6 o'clock. The Senate went into executive session and at 5.11 p. m. adjourned.

THE HOUSE.

Washington, July 5. The House devoted an hour today to debate on the Pacific railroads bill brought out by the Senate amendment to the general deficiency bill. The partial conference report on the river and harbor bill was agreed to, but that was suspended. The debate was led by Messrs. Cannon of Illinois, Powers of Vermont, and Mc. Kenzie of California, against the amendment.

The partial conference report on the general deficiency bill covering only the Pacific railroad refunding amendment, was adopted.

The House fought for an extended debate on the proposed amendments. Mr. Maguire (Dem., Cal.) asked for three days, but an agreement was reached to vote at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. After passing a bill to provide for the final codification of the bankruptcy law, Mr. Grosvenor, chairman of the appropriations committee opened the debate on the Pacific roads.

Mr. Cannon spoke of the wisdom of the Senate amendment and said it was the duty of Congress to secure the collection of the great amount of indebtedness due to the treasury of the country. He denied that these roads had not paid anything for 30 years. He was ready to say whether or not Congress should have been better legislation to develop that great country west of the Mississippi river than was had.

"But," he asked, "we find here today that this great indebtedness was $59,000,000 to the government with $25,000,000 bond of its a free lien on the property covering a railroad without terminals.

"The agreement contemplated in the amendment he pointed out would be made under the white light of public criticism, and there should therefore be no apprehensions as to the results."

Mr. Maguire followed in opposition. He said he favored enforcing the existing law against these companies and believed there was no reason for legislation to adjust the relations existing between the government and these Pacific roads. He asserted that it was proposed to prevent the government from dealing with the men who want to operate the lines to prevent the government from opening the matter of purchase to all bidders and confine the government through the proposed commission to dickering and negotiations with men, who want to buy the roads and to prevent competition.

Mr. Maguire read numerous telegrams from California, protesting against any extension of delay of the payments.

Mr. Berlin Hoyt (Colo.) had read an amendment the will offer tomorrow, providing that on and after the settlement authorized in perfected within four years after the passage of the act, the President shall at once proceed to foreclose all the granted securities now held by the government against the company and to collect, but indebtedness.

Mr. Powers (Rep., Vt.) chairman of the House committee on Pacific railroads spoke of the results of the construction of the lines and gave attribute to their present condition.

The House at 4.55 P. M. adjourned until Tomorrow.

He rallied however, and was somewhat improved in spirits. Now, however, there comes the end of hope, his face is drawn and his pulse [illegible]

"I feel sorry," Capt. Gridley said, "for those boys they are sending out to Manila. They are in more danger from the scourges of the country than from Spanish bullets. The heat is simply unbearable and they are sure to sicken. The fleet has been absolutely free from it but I fear it will come. I have no desire to express any plan of the government or to stand against the wishes of the people but I see nothing in those islands for us but a scalding season. Nothing in them of our best men could survive there. However, I suppose we must have troops there for a time but the sooner they can cut out the Spanish fire upon us. The Admiral told Merritt will be bombarded unless the Augustin fire. If a single shot came from the city batteries the city would be reduced. I believe we could take the place in two hours.

"The city is absolutely blockaded from the sea and shut in from the rear. The Insurgents are attempting to that. They got 2,000 stand of arms recently. Aguinaldo Dewey gave them 500 and they also got part of the munitions of war taken at Cavite. They have a sort of headquarters there now. There have been few happenings since the defeat of the Spaniards. As I say, the city is now hardened quite completely. Beef has gone to $1.50 per pound and other staples are equally high. There the Baltimore and the captured revenue steamer Callao were sent to Iloilo to try and rescue the captured American ship Saranac and attend to the gunboat El Cano. The latter was one of the small warships not at Manila. There are some fourteen small ones left. They are scattered about the islands and include the Celin, which is dismantled above the ridge near Manila. The captured transport Manila was probably sent to San Francisco. She is a fine 1,100-ton ship and her cargo will be made up of what we captured. Additional ammunition, new cannon, some of them better than any we have, hundreds of new Mauser rifles and all kinds of supplies had just reached Manila before we got there, and they all fell into our hands with the arsenal. I got six new torpedoes and other supplies for the Olympia, and large quantities of stuff that was useless was destroyed by the fleet. We have, however, devoted most of our time to the blockade and not a single vessel got in.

"As to the engagement there is but little to say. We went to Manila and were not expected. I guess it was a case of 'manana' with our enemies. They did not expect us. We had a hard time keeping the Olympia down to the slow speed required to carry out our calculations for arriving. I had not thought of mines or torpedoes and we went in the run. We went up close to Manila and when we found the fleet was not there proceeded round to Cavite, where we knew it would be. We engaged the Spaniards at once. I was with Farragut at Mobile Bay and I did not expect to see anything of the kind again. Strange, but it was just thirty-one years anniversary of Mobile. We began right into it to finish them and made every shot count.

"I guess we have the Reina Cristina beaten quietly. She came towards us, as we thought, to engage us but as we learned afterwards her steam gear was out of order. The Admiral, myself and several others waited in her from the bridge. Some one said we must not let her escape. 'She will never go back,' said the Admiral calmly. His aims were to run her down but the same about as she went from us and we caught her astern with our 8-inch gun. The projectile went clean through her, and I learned afterward that it killed and wounded seventeen men. She did not get back. I have great admiration for those 8-inch guns.

"The Admiral handled the fleet to the best advantage and the work before it was done effectually. It would be impossible to single out individual cases of bravery. I could not in my ship and the Admiral would not in the fleet. I am proud to say that every man did his duty. They were all at their posts and answered to every call of duty. We were at times three hot fires and injured and fired forty-three times from Spain and 278 from Cavite. When it was over we commenced the details of taking possession of Cavite and the captured property and establishing the outside. We heard reports of a Spanish fleet, stronger than our fleet, was coming and understood it was under a couple of armored cruisers. We could have been at a disadvantage if it was the Admiral's intention to go out to the mouth of the harbor and await the coming. Then we would have gone out and fought them to finish. The plan was to surprise them with a sudden attack and get right at them. It takes little cost as a vessel and some previous preparation was our only chance. But the fleet came out and I guess it scared them. I think I am in for it pretty well. I had not leave the ship for the battle. Some of our fellows got ashore and had a good time, but they stayed and came in fast. I am sure that one reason why we were the superior of the Spaniards. Boston and most cordial."

[illegible] RESOLUTIONS [illegible]

Washington, July 5. Representative Berry, of Kentucky, a member of the House committee on foreign affairs today introduced the following joint resolution:

Joint resolution tendering the thanks of Congress to Commodore Schley, U. S. N., and the officers and men under his command.

Resolved, That the thanks of Congress are hereby tendered to Commodore Schley, U. S. N., and the officers and men under his command, for their brave and distinguished conduct in destroying the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters on the third of July, last.

The resolution was referred to the naval affairs committee.

Mr. Berry, in speaking of the resolution said: "I propose that the officers and sailors of the fleet shall be recognized. Schley is the real hero of the incident. He and the brave band of officers and men under the immediate direction are the ones who achieved the victory and all honor should be given them. Sampson commands the fleet in inner waters but it was Commodore Schley who was in command when Cervera came out of his fleet made he attempted to escape and it was under Schley that every one of the Spanish fleet was destroyed. Commodore Schley and his men have proved a notable feat, that will be followed in history hand in hand with that of the sinking of Manila harbor by Dewey on May 1. Congress should be prompt in recognizing their services and there should be no delay in tendering its thanks to those of the country to the gallant heroes at Santiago."

[illegible] SMOKE [illegible]

(Copyright by the Associated Press.)

Madrid, July 5. 11 P. M. Amidst incredible enthusiasm cut loses to pass well here over the supposed escape of Admiral Cervera and his squadron from the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. The admiral's name is on every tongue, and it is claimed that it was he who had saved Santiago de Cuba by sending to Gen. Linares' handful of soldiers his brave crew to man the guns ashore and repel the Americans under Gen. Shafter.

Society about the palace is ready heard to say, this state of public feeling being due to the official announcements from Santiago de Cuba. The immense enthusiasm from Santiago de Cuba is as follows:

"When Admiral Cervera found that Generals certain Col. Escario's reinforcements were in proximity to Santiago de Cuba the admiral held a council with the commanders of his squadron, discussed and a plan to force the blockade of Santiago. The commanders received unanimously.

"It is said (forward)

"It was then agreed that the torpedo-boat destroyers should take the lead in making an attack, and discharge their torpedos against the enemy's ships, the Cristobal Colon protecting their advance, assisted by the batteries of Morro Castle and distracting the enemy's attention, while the remainder of the squadron sallied out of the harbor.

"The Americans at first were taken by surprise, then recovering they opened a tremendous fire especially against the torpedo boat destroyers, which vessels Admiral Cervera had instructed to steer as impossible course to the squadron. The Americans were deceived and manoeuvred towards the supposed course of the Spaniards, while Admiral Cervera went full steam ahead, maintained a continuously fire until clear of the American lines and then steamed away westward, pursued and thrashed for some distance by some of the swiftest American vessels until they were lost sight of from Morro Castle.

"In the meanwhile the torpedo boat destroyers sank, under a rain of shell from the numerous American warships. It is presumed that part of their crews were saved by the enemy or swam ashore. A number of life buoys were picked up on board the torpedo boat destroyers, whose crews anticipated that their vessels would be destroyed.

The foregoing is the popular Spanish version of the sortie of Admiral Cervera from the harbor of Santiago de Cuba and the sacrifice of the crews of the torpedo boat destroyers is said to be highly appreciated by the Queen Regent, while the general public is overjoyed by their conduct.

"It is supposed here that Admiral Cervera is running for Havana, since he had not been reported as arriving at Cienfuegos, and there will be tremendous strikes here until it is known that Admiral Cervera and his squadron are safe in Havana harbor. Hopes are expressed in the city that the Spanish admiral may capture or destroy some American vessel while on his way to Havana."

Conflicting news giving contradictory versions of the sortie have cast a tinge of perplexity and dampness upon the general rejoicing.

In military circles it is considered that Gen. Shafter has been checked, that Rear Admiral Sampson has been baffled and that the aspect of the war has been changed. But the universal expression of opinion is that peace is impossible until something occurs which is satisfactory to the national feeling.

BIG EXPENSE ACCOUNTS.

The expense accounts of correspondents at the front are always matters of astonishment and dismay to the home office. They are appalling, but there is no economy in war, and when the average correspondent of honesty and standing has charged up everything he can think of, and even strained his conscience, he leaves unaccounted for many dollars—sometimes several hundreds. If the expense account covers a long period.

Our correspondent, after his expense account had reached the office of his paper, received from the managing editor the following telegram: "From your expense accounts we judge that you have furnished two-thirds of the island of Cuba. Might we inquire your intentions concerning the remaining third?"

One day on an expedition to the Cuban coast, a newspaper artist was captured by the Spaniards, and when the commandant, with whom he had left Key West got back it became his duty to inform the artist's wife of the fate of her husband. It was a painful duty, but nerving himself for the ordeal he went to the hotel. He had rather have stormed a battery and when he saw the wife of his friend all he could say was: "I am sorry to inform you that your husband has been captured." The poor woman said afterward that for a while her mind could not grasp the situation, and all she could think of was Private Mulhoney reporting to Capt. Sigsbee: "Sir, there has been an explosion and the ship is sinking."

Large Portion of Southern Part of Bath Wiped Out by Fire Tuesday Afternoon.

NO LIVES REPORTED LOST.

Bath, Me., July 5. As a result of too much Fourth of July a large portion of the southern part of the city was wiped out by fire this afternoon. It took the combined efforts of the best department, hundreds of volunteers and forced brigade companies and two fire companies from Brunswick and Lewiston to subdue the flames, and success only came after $100,000 worth of property, including the Methodist church, many dwelling houses and a number of small shops were destroyed.

The fire started about 3 o'clock in the stable of Isaac Crocker and was caused by the crackers.

From the outset the fire had decided the advantage. The church was a mass of ruins within half an hour, while during that time no less than half a dozen smaller structures had caught and were burning fiercely.

The great building of the Woodward Coal Co. was one of those which caught, but the crew of the steam yacht Emerald which was in the stream came ashore and by the most persistent efforts saved the property from going with the rest. The fire, however, kept on down the street, taking all wooden houses until it was finally stopped on South street after two hours of almost uninterrupted work.

Most of the buildings were occupied by merchants, nearly all of whom were able to save but little of their personal effects.

The houses of the following were totally destroyed:

Wesley Lane—H. H. Mason, occupied by Mrs. Jennie Crocker, John Foley, occupied by Minnie Tracey.

Washington street—Frank Brown, G. G. Lamson, W. T. Hodgkins, W. H. Cribb, Thomas Pettengill.

Lord street—John Roberts.

Water street—J. C. Ledrand, John Clancy, Mrs. Margaret Foley, Houghton Bros., joiner shop.

South street—Coleman Flaherty, John Sevia, E. P. Dodwell occupied by John Oliver.

The loss on the list of all the buildings will be covered by insurance, while the church was covered by a $12,500 policy.

The fire departments from Brunswick and Lewiston arrived early in the evening and greatly assisted in subduing the flames.

THE DAY TOPICS

SUGGESTED BY THE WAR.

If the correspondents of opinion of the city editors and the managing editors in New York could be taken the world would be appalled at the way in which their men at the front had missed the greatest opportunity of their lives by not sending in some story, and by the criminal way in which the correspondents in reform, sometimes for a week at a time, to send in anything of value. But if these same editors in New York could project their mental bodies to the porches of the Hotel Key West, or the Tampa Bay Hotel and hear the arrangement which rises in a chorus from the correspondents as they read the telegrams and letters received from the home office—and that would be another story. This is especially true of Key West, or has been until recently, when the news of Hobson's sortie against the squadron at Santiago has been transferred large to Jamaican ports and Mole St. Nicholas.

Immense discomforts to be expected, lack of telegraphic facilities and the poor communication compelled to keep the correspondents in the dark and the home office out of touch with each other. The theatre of war is a vast one, and a correspondent making every effort and taking every precaution is just as likely to be where things are not going on as he is to be where they are. The expert to be the newspaper is experienced in covering the present war, and the actual news returns small for the outlay. So between the home office and the correspondent in the field there is never existing except temporarily, a more cordial relation than that of armed neutrality.

HURRY ORDERS.

A correspondent in Key West of a New York paper received a telegram to go to Cuba and see how Gomez was getting along. It sounded like the city editor said: "Run up to Harlem and cover the obituary. We must really cover it." Fortunately he had been in gratifying himself ever since he had been in Key West with the Cubans, and after much detail he was informed that it is dangerous to travel. Gomez was to send out on a certain day in an open boat for the Cuban coast and would take him along. It was a matter of a couple of weeks to make the arrangements for the ferry from Havana to Key West, the big mountains and the camp of Gomez is located in impenetrable the suburbs of Brooklyn. Two days under the broiling sun and two nights under the pendant stars that covered from those rebel skies the prisoner spent in that miserable boat, short of food and drinking warm water, until at last he landed on the Cuban shore, passed the insurgents, saw the taking of a town and got a good story. He said he was congratulated from the top of the commander, and offers poured in for the exclusive story, and wanted to know the object, when he was taken off had stood twice in Key West to write the report. Then he was laid up with the fever for a week, a fever great to bind up a remembrance by the Mangrove swamps.

When he was able he received a telegram from his paper, saying: "Return immediately to Cuba and give us another story. That was a good one, you know. We want another just like it."

There was an intimation that he was expected not to be at all in doubt as to his address at this time. The word "immediately" was that especially emphasized the crisp of the reporter, and in the heat, fever-stricken, may be seen saying.

HOW WE BROKE THE BARBED WIRE FENCES.

Five thousand American men wielding this new weapon in front of the Spanish trenches at Santiago. It is a simple enough thing—only modelling known it by sight. The Spanish thought that by stringing barbed wire fences in front of their works, to clear the assaults of the invaders. But Yankee ingenuity was equal to the occasion. A call was made on the Quartermaster's department for 5,000 wire cutters. Armed with these the front ranks of the assaulting troops pressed forward, as in a forlorn hope, and cut and cutted inside the wires which the Spaniards fondly hoped would bar their enemy.

Five New York firms supplied the American made implements. Smith Lyon & Co., John Wanamaker, the Hotchkiss Lewis Manufacturing Company, A. P. Bromlacher & Co., and Hopping Brothers. The list price of these combination pliers and wire cutters is $18 a dozen but Uncle Sam got them for 44 cents each.

It's a queer reflection but our same Uncle Sam supplied Spain with the barbed wire, and then fired out our army with the utensils for cutting it.

The Spanish forces adopted the modern barbed wire fences of the Cubans to insure additional protection to their epochas, and from the United States as well as Europe barbed wire in large quantities was imported. The same weapon, however, which made the charge of Cuban cavalry so terrible, the machete, rendered the barbed wire fences of no avail as against the Cuban infantry. One blow of the machete will sever a wire fence as easily as a cotton twine. The machete was adapted to the needs of war from the peaceful uses of the plantation. It was employed to cut sugar cane. The Cubans being short of rifles and shorter still of ammunition, picked up and made the most of the weapons at hand, and the most convenient and effective of these was the plantation knife. Thus swords made, much like the knives came into play. Some are long, bladed and others short, but the width of the blade in nearly all cases is the same—two and a half to three inches. Most of the machetes are of American make, though some come from Germany. There is a knack in swinging the machete which adds much to its effectiveness. The blow is glancing and the instant it strikes the hand and arm are relaxed to allow of the rebound, so that by observing both of these precautions the wear and tear on the wielder is reduced.

Only one American regiment now in Cuba is armed with the machete and that is the Rough Riders. For the others the combination pliers and wire cutters were provided. Every man to his weapons is the American policy of Uncle Sam. The Americans can fight better with their rifles because they are more used to them, and can shoot straighter. The Cubans, on the other hand, having been short both of rifles and cartridges, developed to an amazing extent their proficiency with the machete. It would be folly to arm our soldiers at the last moment with weapons with which they are not familiar, and so instead of giving machetes to the American volunteers and regulars to use against the fences they have been supplied with cutters. Two thousand cutters were shipped to Tampa on Friday to use in subsequent operations and more will follow. Over in the Philippines the Spaniards also have erected their defences with barbed wire and so we have sent to our army in the far off South Seas cutters to spoil the game of the enemy. We, too, have sent barbed wire thereby enable our forces to hold against the Spanish whatever pieces they will take. The Spanish disdain to use the machete, though they fear the weapon in the hands of the Americans. They have, however, no means at hand to overcome our use of barbed wire fences.

WHEN WILL SPANISH HONOR BE SATISFIED?

Paris, July 5. The Temps this afternoon publishes an article headed "Peace is Necessary," during the course of which it says: "Perhaps the only service which Senor Sagasta can now render to Spain is a party, liberalism and himself to obtain negotiations for peace. There has been enough bloodshed, battles and destruction of ships, forts and lives. If Spanish honor is not satisfied when in the name of heaven will it be?"

OLD SMOKESTACKS.

An Article For Which There Is Always a Demand.

Among the very great variety of things that may be bought at second-hand are smokestacks of iron or of steel. It may be that an establishment gets in a bigger boiler and wants a bigger stack. If it is rusty a good or an iron stack, the old one is taken down carefully and a new one set up. The old stack may be sold to a dealer in second-hand boilers and machinery, or the owner may keep it and sell it himself to somebody that wants a second-hand smokestack. If it is sold to a dealer, he may remove it to his own yard, or it may be that the original owner keeps it on his premises until the dealer has sold it. A manufacturer may move from one place to another and sell the old plant, or parts of it. Here would be a second-hand smokestack. Second-hand stacks are bought by various men. It may be that the smokestack of an establishment is worn out and that the boiler is not and that a second-hand stack would last out the life of the boiler. In such a case the user would get a second-hand stack if he could find one suitable. Second-hand stacks may be used with various temporary plants set up by contractors and others. A smokestack may be blown down in a windstorm and the user supply the place of it with one bought second-hand.

A steel or iron stack costs about half as much as a brick stack. A second-hand iron stack costs about half as much as a new one. Stacks of metal are made generally of steel, the steel and costs more than wrought iron. There is an increasing use of steel instead of brick stacks. Steel stacks up to 6 and 7 feet in diameter would be classed as portable stacks; larger stacks would be of more or less permanent character. Steel smokestacks are now made up to 15 feet in diameter. Very large smokestacks may be lined with brick.

Second-hand smokestacks up to 3 feet in diameter are likely to be found in stock in the yard of the dealer in second-hand boilers and machinery, and be likely to have stacks of larger size elsewhere. There is always a demand for second-hand smokestacks.—New York Sun.

AVOIDING "A TOUCH."

One Woman's Cheerful Method of Description Polite Request.

Men have something to learn from women in the art of "touching off for coin." Women respond to such requests about once in every thousand times, but they are scientific in their refusals. A Washington woman with a registration as a horse-way turned up at the home of one of her friends the other morning with a moan done over story about a persistent and threatening dressmaker and the usual request for the loan—"pay it back tomorrow, certain"—of $5.

"Why, my dear, certainly," was the pleasant response to her carefully rehearsed little yarn. "You poor thing, you! Just wait till I run up stairs and get my purse."

She ran up stairs. The little head of the house happened to be in the room where she kept her purse. He saw her dig the purse out of a chiffonier drawer and deliberately remove a trad of bills from it, leaving about 37 cents in silver and copper in the change receptacle. The man was mean enough to lean over the stair railing when his wife went down stairs to the parlor with her distinguished pocketbook in her hand.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, Mat. X.," he heard her say, "but I really thought I had the money. I find, though, that John, as usual, has been at my purse—I heard him say something about settling a plumber's bill last night when I was half asleep—and the mean thing his only left me enough for car fare. Too bad! Of course, you know, if I had it," etc.—Washington Post.

The Coin Came Back.

"I have once or twice read how small the world was," said a young fellow, "and once or twice I have seen stories of the same kind I am going to tell. I confess I never believed them, but now I know better. Last summer, when in New York on my annual visit, I was struck with a sudden whim and scratched my initials on a 25 cent piece, cutting into the silver deep enough to make a lasting impression. I paid for a cigar in the Hoffman House with the coin and gayed myself with being foolish. I had forgotten all about the quarter when I entered a Carrollton car and gave a half dollar to the conductor. Imagine my surprise when he handed me in change the 25 cent piece I spent in the Hoffman House! I think I will keep the coin now and ever more as a curiosity," and the speaker pulled the money from his pocket and showed it in verification of his story.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Curious Policies.

Accident insurance policies have taken many curious shapes, ranging from the penny in the slot to the coupon in the weekly newspaper. At the limit has been reached in London, where the purchaser of a book of cigarette paper is insured for $50 for a period of 70 days. The annual cost of this amount of insurance is about 75 cents a year, provided the holder of the novel policy is not a cigarette fiend. The amount of insurance is specifically set aside for the defraying of funeral expenses in the event of accidental death.—New York Journal.

Animals are often able to bear very protracted fasting. In the Italian earthquakes of 1795 two hogs were buried in the ruins of a building. They were taken out alive 43 days later, but very lean and weak.

During the last 50 years Great Britain has been at war more frequently than any other nation. The total number of large and small wars waged during that time amounts to about 60, or one a year.

Maternal Trials.

"Edie," cried the mother from the hall below, "what's all the noise up stairs? It's shocking."

"Oh, it's these two dolls of mine, mamma. I'm going to put them right to bed and see if we can't have a little peace."—Puck.

THE STOCK MARKET.

New York, July 5. Wall street offered today one of the most confusing markets to the outside observer, or inexperienced speculator. Yet the opening burst of animation and strength, the subsequent reaction and then fluctuating tendency of individual stocks all had their rational motives. At first view there was every reason to expect a strong upward movement throughout the day on account of the glorious achievements of the United States navy and the imminence of a capitulation by the Spanish forces on Saturday. There was a rush to buy at the opening and the prices went up and had the temerity to open in effort at stocks over the triple holiday recently to cover. London also bought quite eagerly. Consequently stocks which had recently been under pressure both by Peoples Gas and Sugar and the Inter-borough scandals showed the short advance. But the further we went equally obvious that quite a number of stocks which had been pushed up at the expense of the recent bears were suffering from profit taking. After the strong demand from London had been satisfied profit taking commenced fairly reducing all the early advances, and in many cases carrying prices below last Friday's.

There was a significance in the fact that the opening of the new fiscal year had not shortly use increase of funds were offered in any marked pressure for speculation or investment in the stock market. This is influential in the conclusion that the effect of the recent market which will result from the taking up of the government loan on July 24. Government is reflected in more given interest than did stock and prices were more generally firm. Closing quotations of government bonds were unchanged from Friday.

THE LIMIT.

One of the most exasperating things that happens to a correspondent is to send a dispatch from the home office some time after bedtime, only to have the bedtime called at 5 o'clock that night. The full official account has been given out at Washington. It seems strange that you could not have sent us but at least a short account of such an important event.

We rush to the office with the telegram and beg to be allowed to square ourselves with the office by proving that the Washington story is the given out for strategic reasons, and that the fleet lying right before your eyes, where it has been since last week. But the censor, and by blandly decides that the following is the correct reply: "Cousin will not trouble you to pay attention that the Oregon left Key West a week or so to establish coaling stations, will the home office please."

The British correspondents, when sending out expense accounts, always fill the story, as George Augustus Sala did his expense account with the London Telegraph, which that paper once sent him to St. Petersburg. Sala charged everything he could think of, and put this account down fifty pounds short of the money he had drawn. The editor of the telegraph wrote to Sala about the discrepancy, and received back the characteristic reply: "Add fifty pounds to my expense account—I forgot to mention that I weigh about fifty pounds."

ment should be placed on something deeper than sentiment. Success has been attained in lectures, courses and debates in the social department.

REPORT OF THE EDITOR.

The report of the editor, Rev. A. Upham, of Dorchester, Mass., told of the five pages of Epworth League matter which appear monthly in Zion's Herald, the 52 issues, and one with the Church's and the separate editorial column for the interest of the church.

Rev. O. W. Scott, of Brockton, Mass., reported for the junior leagues. He said that properly administered the juvenile work is a fruitful field. It is not only a field for sowing but for reaping. The first junior league was organized in Hoboken, N. J. There are only about one-third as many junior as senior leagues. Junior engine work makes a symmetrical, well rounded child. Not less than 2000 conversions have occurred in this district since October, 1896. Membership in proportion to the completeness of organization. The total membership is 13,205.

The report of the chairman of literary work, Rev. W. J. Yates, of Rockville, Conn., stated that he had done all in his power by addresses to advance the literary work, urging the study of our own history and doctrines and the Word. The Epworth League page issued by a syndicate of newspapers is in very extensive circulation. He said it was his earnest desire to be relieved of the office of third vice president as he had held it five years and thought no one should hold the office too long.

After the reports the convention adjourned or recess at 7 P. M. in Young Men's Christian Association hall.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was held in Y. M. C. A. Hall with a large attendance. A devotional service was conducted by Rev. Dr. B. H. Boynton and greetings followed.

Rev. F. E. White, of Rockland, for the conference, said that in inviting them to the conference they were inspired somewhat by selfishness for it was not so much that they should remember Maine, as that Maine should remember them.

He bade them a hearty welcome to the conference.

Rev. H. E. Foss extended greetings for the city. He explained that Congressman Boutelle, who was to have given greeting for the State, went away to pass the Fourth, and had not yet returned from Aroostook. He said that Mr. Boutelle could be expected to speak at some time during the session.

Rev. Mr. Foss said they were glad to have them come because they were an enthusiastic people. What was needed was to have company once in a while. It is a good thing for a city to have company. Then is a good time to get people out of the ruts.

No city can have a visit for three days from several hundred enthusiastic men and women without being benefited by it. We are glad to welcome you because you are aggressive. This is the most wonderful movement the world has seen. We are doing great things and are going to do greater.

I wish Congressman Boutelle were here for he is a brave man. He dares to stand up in one in Congress and vote for what he thinks is right. We are going to raise up a generation of young men to whom the ballot will be as sacred as prayer. I believe that the political conscience of the young man of the present day is truer than that of the older generations. In stating that the church of today contains the flower of manhood Mr. Foss referred to Admiral Dewey, a member of the Episcopal church, Hobson, president of the Christian Endeavor Society of the university, Gen. Miles, a Baptist, and President McKinley, a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

President Perrin responded, saying that they were delighted to be in Bangor. He spoke of a number of Maine men who had been prominent in Boston in various ways. They were glad to be in this great health resort. State of Bangor is one of the oldest parts of New England and the river Penobscot dimpses with the Hudson and the Rhine. We are glad to come to Maine because it is the home of statesmen. Have you ever thought about a tremendous influence the State of Maine exers in Congress? Here's Congressman Boutelle. He is chairman of the House committee on naval affairs.

Then there's Nelson Dingley, chairman of the committee on ways and means. Eleven terms has Speaker Reed been in Congress and he is such a magnificent speaker that his speeches fill a year. It is a wise thing for you in Maine to do to keep your congressmen in office term after term. Maine will never be forgotten for its war of 1898. There are General Long, a Maine man, and Senator Hale, chairman of the navy committee, a Maine man.

Don't close your enthusiasm due to the Maine law. Keep it where it is. We look to Maine for inspiration and we are glad to come and get inspiration.

SERMON BY REV. LEVI GILBERT, D. D.

After an anthem by the choir a sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Levi Gilbert of New Haven, Conn., on "Chosen People of Freedom." He said in the freedom we enjoy to-day's sermon Anglo-Saxon freedom. What was done in days of old for liberty, Saxon has done in the present day. English liberty took root in Saxon soil. In this land the strongest element was Scotch-Irish Puritan. They were men filled with the determination for liberty. They dared what never man dared before for the liberty of worshipping as they chose. The same tenacity has descended to the children. It is the same tenacity that is in Speaker Reed, the man of the Maine. Writer of Blue Hobson, the Rough Riders in the Cuban war, McKinley, Chaplin, the Christian man. It is not in such people that we have our present form of government. It is constitutional liberty, a free government for the people, emanating from the people. The fundamental doctrine of our liberty is that whatever the condition of a man he has an equal right to liberty. If we make human happiness with any annihilated been hurtfully said that all the Chinese are not worth the life of a single young man of this country. Behind this idea, false and foolish, they may be lazy, indolent and weak, but they are men and women and we ought to protect them and if need be, die for them.

The program for today includes a bicycle run at 5 A. M. to the Nixon Club house, meeting at department conference, 8:45; 10:30, reports; 11:15, addresses; 2, devotional; 2:45, address and business meeting; 7:30, sermon.

The sermon was very eloquent and able.

LATEST!

A DESPERATE ATTACK BY THE SPANIARDS.

A Sortie at Night Upon the American Line Outside Santiago, But Are Repulsed With Heavy Loss.

Santiago, de Cuba, July 3, via Kingston, July 4, 11.30 p. m. The Spanish made a desperate night attack upon our left shortly before 10 p. m. Saturday. The assault was directed at the position that had been carried by Gen. Kent's men.

The Spaniards left the trenches and charged across the open striking heavily upon Gen. Wyckoff's brigade consisting of the 9th, 13th and 24th infantry. They were reinforced by a heavy fire all along the line of guns and batteries and succeeded in driving some of our men from the trenches but the heavy fire the Americans poured in sent it swelling backwards with heavy loss.

The Americans advanced from the trenches for the first time and while the Spaniards were in the open some of our gatlings did terrible execution.

The casualties among our men were not heavy. Gen. Hawkins was shot in the foot. Over 200 additional wounded were taken to the rear.

Under Gen. Shafter's orders the battle was renewed at 6 this morning along the whole line.

The recruits were ordered to the front today. Our loss has now reached 1700 killed and wounded.

Capt. Dos Ben of the third cavalry went with a working party at 1 a. m. to straighten the line of entrenchments between Gen. Chaffee's brigade on the right and Gen. Kent's division on the left. He clashed in the dark with Spaniards, who were advancing in front of the working party and was obliged to retire. Rodney of troop E was killed, and Foote, of troop E, was wounded.

The Spanish loss could not be ascertained.

TROOPS START FOR SANTIAGO.

The 8th Ohio, 6th Illinois and 6th Massachusetts Broke Camp on Tuesday.

WILL ARRIVE BY SUNDAY.

Washington, July 5. The second brigade, first division of the second army corps brigade camp at Camp Alger this afternoon and started for Santiago to reinforce Gen. Shafter's army.

The brigade is composed of the 8th Ohio, 6th Illinois and 6th Massachusetts, Gen. Carretson commanding. The 6th Massachusetts was the first to get away, going aboard the cars at Dunbarton and leaving for Charleston, S. C., shortly after 10. The other regiments will depart before daybreak.

The Old regiment goes to New York, where it will embark on the St. Paul while the Illinois troops go to Charleston and with the Massachusetts men will be transported upon the Harvard and Yale. All superfluous baggage was left behind and everything that could be spared was discarded.

It is expected to have the troops off Santiago Sunday.

SPANIARDS ARMING FOR CIVIL WAR.

London, July 6. The Madrid correspondent of the Telegraph says:

Disorder is prevailing throughout the country. The crowds in the city are getting riotous, and everywhere signs are apparent of the population is arming for civil war.

Marshal Martinez Campos and the captain general of Madrid have held long consultations as to ways and means of preserving order.

The receiving of the destruction of Cervera's squadron produced a painful impression.

France and Depopulation.

While European Russia will inclose only 40 years or so, Germany about 65 years, Austria-Hungary 70 years, England 80 years, Italy 110 years, it will take France over 800 years to double its population. What signifies the loss of Alsace-Lorraine's 1,600,000 souls compared with the loss France suffers every day? In the last five years the German population has increased by 2,000,000, who into every one fully German. France, mean while, has increased her people by only 170,000, who are not even of French nationality. The increase of population is of the utmost importance to the success of its country. It has meant much in the 19th century, it will mean more in the 20th. Russia, Germany, Austria, even Italy have millions of reproductive vassals or foreign soil. France has none or too few to signify. The Gallic race has felt it and will in the future learn more or less fully all the truth of the proverb, "The absent are ever in the wrong."—Humanitarian.

He Could See Through Them.

Carl Hertz, the well known conjurer, once entertained a company at afternoon tea by performing some of his cleverest tricks. One of the parlor maids, who had been passing angel cakes, glasses and so on, was much interested, and when the footman gave a sign that nothing more was needed the girl still lingered to see the conclusion of the trick just begun.

"Will some one oblige me with a heavy shawl or cloak?" Hertz said. "Now," he went on, spreading a big cashmere shawl, "you observe the thickness of the shawl?" They all did, including the maid at the door. "Now, will one of you be good enough to write a number of three figures on a piece of paper, being careful not to let me see what is written?" One of the ladies did so, while the maid at the door leaned forward and began to breathe hard.

"Now place the written paper, with the figures on the upper side, under the shawl, as I hold it." It was done, the thickness of the shawl being between Hertz and the paper as he looked down toward it. There was breathless silence. Then he said, "Surely the number is 761." It was. He had apparently seen right through the thick shawl. Every one was amazed.

Then upon the silence broke the shriek of the maid at the door. With one final gaze at the shawl and one at the handsome conjurer she bid her rosy face in her hands, yelling at the top of her voice, "Wasn't the good of my clothes?" and fled.—Argonaut.

A Man of System.

A newspaper man of some celebrity as a disciplinarian was noted about his office for the extreme disorder of his own desk. Though insisting upon methodical habits on the part of his employees, he gave his own pigeonholes a cleaching out and sorting over only once a year, and his regular time for doing this, oddly enough, was Washington's birthday.

It happened, one year nevertheless, that he forgot to perform this task at the proper time, and a friend who happened in at his office on the morning of Feb. 23 was surprised at finding him surrounded by his usual hopeless litter of letters and papers.

"How does this happen, Mr.——?" he asked.

"Forgot it," shortly answered the editor.

"Well, you're going to clean things up today, aren't you?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "That job goes over, under the rules, for another year. You don't suppose I am going to set an example of irregularity to the boys, do you? Not much!"

And he cleared away a scrap on his desk and began writing another literal on the tariff.—Youth's Companion.

To Join Forces.

Having accomplished the real purpose for which our forces were sent to Santiago, namely, the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, the capture of the city itself is a matter that can take care of the work just as well with the army alone.

The news from Washington is that nothing is to the effect that the best interests of the city will be judged for a day or two. The President has summoned a conference between Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter to determine the advisability of sending the fleet into the harbor to cooperate with the army. It is believed that this course will be followed.

General Pardo is believed to have received Santiago dispatches asking his force to cut already entrenched behind the defences, but with the vessels of the fleet inside the harbor the capture of the city would only be a question of a very short time.

Care of Wounded at Key West.

One of the first problems to present after the beginning of the war with Spain was what should be done with the sick and wounded who might be injured in battle or who might contract disease in the field. It was desirable that such victims of the war should have a place out of the remote from the scene of action, where, surrounded by skilled men and careful nurses, they might receive such treatment as would permit their early return to the field or their removal, when convalescent, to their homes. After much delibration, Surgeon General Sternberg decided that in many respects Key West was best adapted for such a hospital, and immediately steps were taken to secure buildings appropriate for such use.

Almost simultaneously with the demand for the buildings came an offer from the Sisters of Charity, who treated their convent and grounds to the Government. The offer was accepted, and while the good sisters remain in charge of their home it is practically a part of the army relief element. Close by the convent are two schools in which the sisters taught, at military, too, were included in the resources offer. Not far away are several large frame tenements formerly used as eight [illegible], and there are also secured for hospital purposes.

When the arrangement of the convent proper, some of these buildings were ready for use, and Major J. L. Sawyer of the quartermaster general's department, who was in duty at the Tampa [illegible] was ordered to take charge of the reconstruction of the buildings. Mr. Sawyer began his work with energy and skill born of long experience in the quartermaster general's department, and soon had the buildings so remodeled as the usual equipment of a hospital. Long frame corridors, with broad porticos connecting the buildings on the upper grounds, were built, and the [illegible] were made habitable by the plentiful use of water and paint. As each of the apartments was completed, it was filled up with cots, mostly by military [illegible] and nursing to defer the noise. Then the surgeons, nurses, chaplain, and the rest of the crew were took under their direction. Surgeons, nurses and wards for the care of diseases to which men in the field are so liable were established in [illegible] Major Hall of the medical corps, who is in charge of the army hospitals here, and have everything in readiness for the reception of patients. In the meantime there are accommodations for five hundred patients, but in the event of the advance of a larger number [illegible] are [illegible] to be located in hospital at the barracks, the Marine hospital and the Naval hospital.

While the Government has done all that it was in its power to make the new hospital [illegible] the convenience of the wounded and invalid soldiers, there is more yet can be done by the patriotic men and women of the country, for as yesterday it has been stated, [illegible] and [illegible] comes [illegible] to the sick [illegible] of the patients. It [illegible] is [illegible] one of the ships which [illegible] have been impressed in the service [illegible] Navy [illegible] Hall [illegible] to supply the needed [illegible] for the patients. Condition also to be believed, Barcelona was founded by Hercules long before the building of Rome; but historians usually attribute its foundation to Hamilcar Barca, who gave to it the name Barcelona, whence the more modern name Barcelona is derived. From the beginning the city passed into the hands of the Romans and Arabs until 1000. It was then governed, until the 14th century by Counts, who were independent although nominally subject to the Carovingian Kings. At last Barcelona became a part of the crown of Aragon, and reached a remarkable degree of prosperity through its extensive commerce with all the ports of the Mediterranean, and even with the coasts of England and the Netherlands. The first vestiges of the establishment of marine insurance and the negotiation of bills of exchange are to be found in the history of Barcelona, thus showing the progressive character of its inhabitants.

[illegible] SPAIN

Officials Say It Would Not Be Advisable to Take City by Storm With Present Forces.

Washington, July 5. There will be no bombardment of Santiago today and possibly not during the present week. This is the opinion of members of the cabinet as expressed on leaving the White House after the cabinet meeting. Secretary Alger and Secretary Long have been in almost constant communication with Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson upon the situation and the conclusion has been reached that it would not be advisable to attempt to carry the city of Santiago by storm with our present force. Gen. Shafter in a despatch received last night confirmed the report that Gen. Pando with about 6,000 Spaniards had arrived in the city, and were already distributed among the fortifications. This reinforcement makes the Spanish forces defending the city from 16,000 to 18,000. The very great advantage of being entrenched adds materially to its strength, and in the opinion of military men makes their effective force from a third to a half greater than our own. Gen. Shafter in his despatches states that the excessive heat and rains of the last two weeks have contributed nearly as much as the Spanish bullets to the ineffectiveness of our army. At the cabinet meeting the President directed that telegrams be sent to Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson suggesting that they confer as to the situation and particularly as to the advisability of the admiral's attempt to force a passage into Santiago bay and so be in a position to render effective aid in the assault on the city. It is known to be Gen. Shafter's desire to have the fleet enter the harbor. Orders were also given looking to the immediate despatch of troopships from Tampa with reinforcements for Shafter and other a now off Santiago will be brought here at the earliest possible moment to aid in the transportation of reinforcements. It is probable that at least 15,000 will be sent forward as rapidly as transportation can be provided.

A Senator who talked with the military officials said there was no doubt of the outcome if the American fleet could get inside the harbor and thus place the city between the land and sea bombardments.

The arrival at Santiago of Gen. Pando with reinforcements for Linares, occasioned some comment on the course of Gen. Garcia and his Cuban troops in not holding back, particularly in view of the fact that Gen. Lawton's brigade was co-operating with Garcia, but it is believed the latter left Lawton in an embarrassed position. In meeting the situation the most active steps toward getting large reinforcements to Gen. Shafter were in progress. Three regiments of Gen. Garretson's brigade go from Camp Alger, one of them, the 8th Ohio, under Col. Curtis V. Hard, proceeding to New York where they will embark immediately on the St. Paul. The other regiments in this brigade, the 6th Illinois and the 6th Massachusetts, go to Charleston, S. C., where they will take the cruisers Harvard and Yale.

At the same time the brigades of Gen. Ernst and Gen. Haines, now at Chickamauga, will move with all possible despatch to Charleston, Savannah, Mobile and other Atlantic coast points, there to take transports to Santiago.

In detail the commands making up this important body of reinforcements are as follows: Gen. Ernst's brigade: First brigade—First division, First Army Corps, Third Wisconsin, Col. Martin T. Moore; Fifth Illinois, Col. Jas. S. Culver; First Kentucky, Col. John B. Coleman.

Col. Haines' third brigade, Third division of the first army corps: Ninth Pennsylvania, Col. Chas. B. Dougherty. Second Missouri, Col. Wm. K. Caffey. First New Hampshire, Col. Robert N. Rolfe.

Gen. Garretson's brigade: Eighth Ohio, Col. Curtis V. Hard; Sixth Illinois, Col. D. J. Foster; Sixth Massachusetts, Col. Chas. F. Woodward.

It is understood that orders to the brigades at Chickamauga are to move with all possible despatch, without fixing the exact hour, it being left with those on the field to make the best arrangements with the railroads for moving southward toward Mobile, Savannah and the other coast towns of embarkation. The three regiments at Camp Alger are expected to move today. Gen. Garretson will probably go with the Ohio regiment to New York and thence to Santiago on the St. Paul.

The navy department has no additional details on the destruction of the Spanish fleet. Admiral Sampson was not present when the engagement began, but Commodore Watson's despatch of that night indicates that he had rejoined Santiago after the fight. In the absence of both Sampson and Watson, the direction of the fight would have fallen to Commodore Schley and being in the heat of the engagement on the flagship Brooklyn, it seems probable that he gave the signals by which the American ships maneuvered and selected their various points of attack.

The disposition of Admiral Cervera and the 1,500 prisoners is receiving the attention of naval officers today, but no determination has yet been reached. Admiral Cervera will be treated with the consideration due his rank.

The Brewer Cadet band is to give a moonlight excursion down the river next Monday night, July 11, on the steamer Sedgwick, and no doubt a large crowd will go, as the band will render one of the best concerts and the program will include many patriotic selections. Great care will be taken not to allow any offensive person on the boat, and the best of order will be maintained. Quite a number of Brewer people have already signified their intention of going. The boat will leave Bar Harbor wharf at 8 o'clock and will return about 11.30 o'clock.

Harold Nason of Orono, who had his foot crushed beneath the wheels of the Bar Harbor train in this city Monday night and later was obliged to have his leg amputated, is reported to be quite comfortable at the Eastern Maine hospital, where he was taken. Mr. Nason it is known, boarded the wrong train in Bangor on Monday night and was brought across the bridge to Brewer. When he found that he was on the wrong train he did not wait for the train to reach Penobscot Junction, but jumped off when near the station and was thrown beneath the wheels.

MADRID HAS NOT HEARD THE NEWS YET.

Madrid, July 5—Noon. Not one of the official despatches received from Cuba up to this hour make mention of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's squadron, and consequently the American accounts of the battle cause immense surprise and sensation though they are discredited by the Spanish officials.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting news of today's expected bombardment of Santiago de Cuba, and it is anticipated that the fighting will result in appalling bloodshed. The Spaniards doubt whether the city will succeed in penetrating into the Americans, even if they destroy it, as their losses are confidently expected to be enormous, since the arrival of the Spanish reinforcements at Santiago de Cuba will, according to the people here, enable Santiago to make a more tenacious defence than would otherwise have been the case.

There is much comment here over the news of the departure of the foreign warships from Manila at the moment of the arrival there of the American reinforcements. Only two German, two French and four British warships now remain at Manila, and people are asking if international policies have undergone a change and if the Americans are to be given a free hand in the Philippine Islands.

The news received here that the British consul at Hong Kong had sent a despatch boat to Manila for the purpose of informing Rear Admiral Dewey of the fact that Admiral Camara's squadron had traversed the Suez canal is much commented upon and the newspapers assert that Egyptian and British authorities purposely placed obstructions in the way of Admiral Camara's departure in order to delay his arrival at Manila as long as possible, adding that the British have been more scrupulous in maintaining the neutrality of the Suez canal than they were when they allowed a steamer to leave Hong Kong loaded with arms for the Manila insurgents.

The Spanish minister for war, Senor Auncon, is quoted in an interview as saying:

"I am highly pleased with the feat of arms performed by Admiral Cervera's squadron, which left Santiago the moment Admiral Cervera judged it opportune to do so."

After eulogizing the Spanish admiral, the minister of marine added:

"The squadron could only leave the harbor at a given moment, and when the moment arrived Admiral Cervera seized it. I have never doubted he would do so. But of course it is difficult to see the result. The American squadron was taken by surprise. After admiring us, the American admiral detached five of his best ships which returned for some time abreast of ours, but they were soon left astern. Only the Iowa and Brooklyn were able to follow our fleet, but it is certain they will not do so far, for fear of reprisals on our part. Admiral Cervera deserves great praise."

It is said in Madrid that Gen. Pando is still at Havana and that the reinforcements for Santiago de Cuba are commanded by Gen. Parejo and Colonels Escario and Navarro.

Honolulu's reception of our soldiers on their way to the Philippines amounted to an ovation. Before the transports had come in sight the arrangements for their reception had been made and the committee waited for the five ships which were to announce their approach. From almost every window in the city the red, white and blue streamed on all shapes and sizes. When the big transports were at last sighted and the long expected five whistles told the waiting city of their arrival, all who could beg, borrow or steal a boat went out to meet the soldiers. President Dole was out in his own yacht in his straw hat and shirt sleeves when he heard the whistle blows and saw the crowded ships up reaching. He did not wait for them.

Lost on the drift, and where the full clouds flow,
The steep above him looms,
And strong winds out of distant regions blow
The snow in streaming plumes,
And yawns the gulf of the gorge below
In sapphire glows and glooms.

Along the precipice there is no way
That he may safely tread;
Slight is his foothold on the slippery clay
That trembles to his tread,
And chill and terrible the dying day
Falls fast about his head.

Could he but hear some lowing of the herd,
Some mountain bell ring clear,
If some familiar sound one moment stirred
To guide him lost in fear!
He dares not move. Some beckoning leading word,
Alas, could he but hear!

In those waste places of the earth and dim
No star shines forth at all!
Through awful loneliness enshrouding him
He gives the shuddering call,
While horror of great darkness seems to swim
And fold him in its pall.

Then like blown breath of music in the height
A cry comes far and low.
He thrills, he springs, he gathers all his might
He feels new pulses glow!
His father's voice—he does not know or sight!
He knows the way to go!

REPORTER AND CHINAMAN.

The Newspaper Man Was Very Tired When the Oriental Finished.

Numberless are the tricks which newspaper reporters play upon one another to relieve the somber "grind" of their calling. Two young men employed on a morning paper in a large city were detailed one day to call upon the resident Chinaman and "interview" them respecting some immigration measure then pending in congress. One of the two reporters was a beginner, and the other, an experienced man, naturally assumed the management of the assignment.

"Billings," he said after they had invaded several laundries without any important result, "here is a tea store. I wish you would go in and talk with the proprietor. I want to know what he thinks about Chinamen voting. I'll go on and pull off an interview with the man who runs this cigar shop next door. Remember to use the very simplest English at your command."

The young reporter went inside the tea store, took out his notebook, and thus addressed the proprietor, who happened to be alone at the moment:

"John, how? Me—me—Telograph, John! Newspaper—savvy, John? Newspaper—print things. Understan? Me want know what John think about Chinaman vote, see? What John think—Chinaman—vote—all same Mulican man? Savvy, John? Vote? What think?"

The Chinaman listened to him with profound gravity until he had finished and replied:

"The question of granting the right of suffrage to Chinese citizens who have come to the United States with the avowed intention of making this country their permanent home is one that has occupied the attention of thoughtful men of all parties for years, and it may become in time one of paramount importance. At present, however, it seems to me there is no exigency requiring an expression of opinion from me upon this subject. You will please excuse me."

The young reporter went outside and leaned against a lamppost to rest and recover from a sudden faintness that had taken possession of him. His comrade had purposely "steered him against" one of the best educated Chinamen in the United States.—Youth's Companion.

Reading at Breakfast.

"Reading at breakfast is fatal to sociability. In breakfasting alone it is permissible, but not in company. Leigh Hunt wrote in The Indicator: "When we lived alone, we could not help reading at meals, and it is certainly a delicious thing to restume an entertaining book at a particularly interesting passage with a hot cup of tea at one's elbow and a piece of buttered toast in one's hand. The first look at the page, accompanied by a consistent bite of the toast, comes under the head of intensities." A book at breakfast is no compliment to the cook, but a newspaper is an insult. On the other hand, a newspaper at breakfast is a benefit to the doctor, for it is when one is put off one's guard by the struggle with the folds and the search for items of interest that the way is made easy for the approach of dyspepsia.

In the old days of The Spectator and Tattler, when papers were of a reasonable size and repose ful to boot, they did no harm. Now—well, now the largest circulation in the world may produce the poorest digestion. It has been remarked (by a collector) that the only literature suitable at breakfast is booksellers' catalogues, but since catalogues lend always to telegrams or envy this is doubtful. The line should probably be drawn at private letters.—Cornhill Magazine.

Respectability Defined.

British respectability has been defined in a London police court by a prisoner charged with begging, and the definition seems to have been accepted by the magistrate, for he discharged her. She said: "I'm a respectable woman, a tailoress. Why, I make trousers for Mr. Newton—Mr. Newton, the magistrate, I mean. I'm respectable enough to make a magistrate's trousers, I'm good enough for anything."

What They Prefer.

Bunting—You often hear of self made men, but never of self made women.

Larkin—Women prefer to be tailor made.—Detroit Free Press.

Platinum and Gold.

A package of wire that weighs 25 pounds and resembles ordinary fine polished steel wire was entered at the appraiser's department of the custom house some time ago and valued at $5,000. This is almost as much as the same weight of gold would be valued and the wire attracted a good deal of attention. It was platinum wire, and for that reason worth its weight in gold. A man who viewed it said that the demand for it had apparently increased greatly, as much more platinum, crude and manufactured, was coming through the custom house now [illegible]

PITTSFIELD NEWS.

Hon. Stanley Plummer Secured For Memorial Day Orator, 1899.

Strawberry Festival—The Fourth Passed Very Quietly—Ball Games—Notes.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Pittsfield, July 5. Col. E. L. Plummer has engaged Hon. Stanley Plummer, of Dexter, an able and eloquent speaker, to deliver the memorial address before Stephen Davis Post at Pittsfield, on May 30, 1899, at 2 P. M. The colonel is to be congratulated on being able to secure so prominent and able a speaker. He believes, however, in the old adage, "The early bird that catches the worm." For several years past he has engaged the speaker for the Memorial Day services nearly a year in advance, and by so doing has been able to secure some of the most able orators in the State.

A very close game of ball was played yesterday on Hunnewell's grounds between the Pittsfield team and the Newport High school, resulting in a victory of 8 to 7 for the home team.

One of the most quiet days in Pittsfield for a long time was witnessed yesterday by the few men who remained in town. Nearly everybody went out of town to celebrate the principal places of attraction being Bangor, Skowhegan and Fairfield. Nearly every place of business was closed, and but for the explosion of a few cannon crackers which occasionally broke the stillness, the town had every appearance of a deserted village.

Several members of the Pittsfield Silver Band were in Bangor yesterday where they furnished music for some of the exercises.

The ladies of the Methodist society held a strawberry festival at their church last evening. A supper of bread, strawberries and cream was served, and ice cream and cake were on sale. A very pleasant time was had and a good sum was realized.

Ralph Davis has engaged with E. H. Hatch as clerk in his shoe store. He is also learning the cobbler's trade.

Prof. Tyford, an instructor in Gray's Portland Business College, is in town today in the interests of that school.

The Dewyea base ball team of this place went to Skowhegan yesterday, where they played a game with the Skowhegans, resulting in a score of 17 to 7 in their favor. They also played a game with the Oakland team, in which they were defeated by a score of 7 to 6.

CUBA'S LEGAL ROBBERS.

Tax Collectors Make Prey of the Helpless Merchants.

"It is no use talking," said a man who had been in business in Cuba before the war, "whatever you did those fellows would get the better of you. A business was taxed until the profits had disappeared. You could bribe the customs officials and overcharge the matrons, but corrupt tax collectors got the best end of the game.

A man would appear in your shop and show an authorization to collect a tax on the business you were doing according to its extent. He would take away all your books and virtually suspend your business. You would know that the tax to be collected would legally amount to about $500 and would so tell the collector, but he would say that the books must be gone over carefully. After a day or two the proper thing was to go to him and say that as you were in a hurry to resume trade you would not mind paying $1,000. If he then refused to return the books the "note" had to go up. If you did not raise it he would, on one pretext or another, keep your books for three months and say that he suspected crookedness in them. After much bickering you would have to pay him some exorbitant amount and then the books were returned with a receipt for the legal $500, while the collector pocketed the difference, sharing a proportion of it, of course, with the officials above him.

"Just after you had got to running again along would come some other official with an authorization to collect some special tax. It would probably be a small tax that the Queen Regent of some one else had been persuaded to sanction on the ground that it was so small that nobody would feel it, but that it would put considerable money into the treasury. But this new collector would try the same old game of taking your books to examine and hold you up as the other man did. And so the thing would continue all the year round, every collector robbing you and little of the money actually collected ever reaching the Spanish or Cuban treasury.

"You people in New York kick about the methods of Tammany Hall—you ought to try to do business in Cuba under Spanish government. There is not a trick that Spanish officials are not up to, and they rather pride themselves on their cleverness in pilfering. A business man is blacklisted by every official with whom he comes in contact. Civilian and military officers are just alike in this respect.

"It is a well known fact that many officers of the Spanish army in Cuba keep upon their muster rolls the names of soldiers who have long been dead and draw pay for them whenever the army is paid. Spanish honor sees nothing out of the way in such things.

"When the war is over I shall go back to Cuba and resume my business, with the hope that I shall not be obliged to submit to a continual system of blackmail and oppression."

MACHIAS NEWS.

Youngsters Turned the Town Upside Down on the Fourth.

Hot Weather Drove Many People Out of Town—Fireworks in the Evening.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Machias, July 5. As soon as the town clock had struck 12 at midnight, bells, tin horns and whistles could be heard to break the stillness of the early morn of Monday and it was kept up until breakfast time, with but little rest. Meanwhile the youngsters began their old tricks of changing signs and otherwise turning the town upside down. Soon after 6 o'clock and up until 9 A. M. teams of all descriptions could be seen leaving town for a day's outing, many people seeking the seacoast in preference to other places, as the day was very hot and uncomfortable. Fire crackers were the order of the day in town. A trip to Northfield in the afternoon revealed the fact that nearly 50 of our citizens had chosen that little place to enjoy themselves.

It was a blazing night as one drove up to the top of the hill and gazed down on the cluster of houses that dot the shores of Bog Lake, the place which had been selected for this celebration. In addition to the permanent buildings there were many "side shows" where one could refresh himself with a glass of lemonade for 5 cents or candy, nuts, oranges and bananas as suited him, while the center of all was a large roof covered tent with large floor which was being used as a dance hall. Here pretty girls and partners waltzed and danced to the school's content with music that more resembled Sellier, Chandler's Band. While many returned home at supper time, others stayed until evening when dancing and boating would be better appreciated than during the heat of the day.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the little fellows enjoyed fireworks and on account of a full day's and night's fun retired early in the hour.

The general appearance of Cadiz is fine. Its streets are narrow, but well laid. It has a number of small parks and a splendid promenade, the Alameda de Apodaca, with a magnificent view of the sea. Cadiz was once the richest city in Spain, as it was the only one which had the right of trading with the American colonies.

STRAIN OF THE MEN BELOW.

Those in Engine-Room Do Not Know When Ship May Be Blown Up by Mine or Struck by Shell, and No Murmur is ever Heard.

The Midland News contains an article by Dr. Raymond Spratt, a resident surgeon on the flagship New York. It is published without comment in the Herald in the form in which it follows:

Before the beginning of hostilities the officers of the ship [illegible] prepare for the ship for action. The men all took their stations promptly, and each part of the machinery of the great engine of war was quickly manned, and in a few minutes everything was ready for action.

To an onlooker the arrangements and preparations with which each man took his station appeared marvelous. If some people imagine that on the outbreak of the war the men on the ships had still to be enlisted and there is reason to believe that some Congressmen actually thought so, there is no doubt that the Americans are practical people. Here the men on the ships had all been enlisted some time before their services were required, and the men of the ships had all been enlisted and trained for their duties. Those who know that the navy is composed of men who are proud of their calling and who are thoroughly competent to do the work entrusted to them, and that many of them will be promoted officers, will be prepared to appreciate the fact that the men on the American ships are a picked lot of men.

NO SIGN OF FEAR

When everything is made ready, and everyone knows what he has to do, and knows that there is a place for him, he takes his place, and waits for the signal to begin. Looking around the ship one sees a number of men who are evidently officers, and who are busily engaged in conversation, and many of them are seen to smile. Some of the men are seen to smile, and some are seen to look grave. Some are seen to be talking to everyone. Men are seen to be talking to themselves. Men are seen to be talking to officers. Men are seen to be talking to men

The loss on the Standard Oil Co.'s property is estimated at $2500 and is protected by insurance. The tug was valued at about $500, and was insured for about $300.

"TAKEN IN."

"I used often to read the newspaper cloud to my wife," said Bert Robinson, "and about I was fairly taken in by a patent medicine advertisement. The product paragraph began with a modest account of the sea-serpent, but ended by setting forth the virtues of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which, it was alleged, was a cure for all Bronchial, Throat and Lung troubles, and would even cure consumption, if taken in time. The way I was taken in was this: I had lung disease, and I bought a bottle of the remedy. It was a stranger to me, and it took me in—and cured me." Robinson's experience is identical with that of thousands of others. Be sure to bear in mind that after witnessing for many years the marvelous cures of Bronchial Throat and Lung affections wrought by this wonderful remedy, its manufacturers feel warranted in saying that this remedy will cure 98 per cent of all cases of consumption, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease.

RACING.

A western horseman says eastern people have stolden of the kind of horse Chehalis, 2.05¾, is. He says a horse wears the hopples almost at his knees, and yet he is the handiest to low on earth. He can run a quarter in 28 seconds, and can go into a run without as much as moving an ear, but of course, eastern horsemen won't believe that, says so, that in the country where Chehalis lives it is known to be true.

Lucy Roy, 2.17¾, which won the 2.18 pace at Saugus last week, was sold by A. H. Merrill at one of Cavanaugh Bros. sales in Boston. Merrill says this horse can beat 2.12 over a good mile track, as the day he bought him at Farmer City, Ill., he timed him a third mile in 2.15½ over a mile track, 52 feet over length.

The Kentucky trotter, Scott Hudson, opens his campaign at Ottawa, Ill., this week. In his stable are King Egbert, 2.09¾, Eagle Flinnagan, 2.12¾, Medlumwood, 2.13¾, Burr Patch, 2.13¾, Blaze Boy, 2.14¼, Annie Lee, 2.16¼, Lou's Mack, 2.20¾, and four green youngsters.

Sue Allen has cut the European trotting record to 2.10½. The son of Champion Wedgmount did the track in a race, the first heat of which he trotted in 2.10¾. The best previous record was Col Kuser's mile in 2.14. Atlanto, Senator A, Col. Kaiser, Bismarck, Bellwood, Lavera and Robbie P. were in the record-breaking race. Sue Allen's American mark is 2.09¾.

This week meetings will be held at Hartford, Tiffin, O., Ottawa, Ill., Windsor, Ont., Red Oak, Ia., Rome, N. Y., St. Marys, Penn., Jefferson, Ia., Canton, O. Outside of these points nearly one-half the tracks in the country will be open.

This is the way Cleveland advertises: A horse distancing the field will receive purse. The rules of the National Trotting Association will be strictly enforced. History shows the forest city to be second to none as a racing town. Liberal and fair management pays.

Palmyra Boy put in three heats in 2.09¾, 2.09½, 2.09¾, in the free-for-all at Columbus last week.

The meeting at Old Saugus last week was without any question the best ever held over the track on the Lynn marshes. Everything went along nicely. The judges were on the lookout for any sleepers, and did justified in removing two men. The changes did not affect the final summary of either race, so no one was punished, yet owners and the public were given to understand that the days of lax judging at Saugus are past. Early in August Will Hitchings will give his second meeting.

Just before the regiment sailed for Cuba the quartermaster general supplied the officers with United States mounts.

This brings the meeting the week following both Providence and Concord, while it precedes Dover. The classes at both Combination and Dover are the same. From Dover the horses go down into Maine, where the mile tracks in that State open their season the first week in August.

Their latest is offering $100 in prizes to the four most neatly dressed drivers and $50 for the most neatly attired grooms.

The co-operative plan which was so successful in both the late Combination and Dover meetings will be used again. Entries for the Combination meeting close next Thursday, and the Dover entries one week later.

This era of prosperity, however, did not last very long, for once submit ed to the authority of the Kings of Castile, the commerce of Barcelona behaved, and was soon enveloped in the general ruin of the country. This gave the to a feeling of discontent and in 1640 Barcelona rebelled against Spain and was annexed to France. It was recovered by Spain in 1652, again taken by the French in 1697, and given back to Spain in the same year.

BERRIES IN ORCHARDS.

Growing Small Fruits Among Tree Fruits. Diagram For Mixed Planting.

Differences of opinion prevail as to the possibility and desirability of growing small fruits in peach, plum or apple orchards. A writer in The Rural New Yorker considers the question from several standpoints, giving a plan for mixed planting as follows:

In general cultivation it is not best to try to grow bush fruits or strawberries permanently in an orchard. There are no fruits that can be grown profitably where they are densely shaded by orchard trees. The question of planting small fruits in a young orchard must be considered from two different points of view. The man who makes a specialty of some one thing, as strawberries, and does not grow a succession of all sorts of fruits has an easier task than the man who has no specialty and grows all sorts of fruits in a succession. The first man can plant much more closely than the second. In general, too, strawberries are much better for the orchard than bush fruits, because they are in the soil only one year, and their annual removal gives a better chance for thorough tillage.

The cut shows a method of planting small fruits in an orchard which is essentially that practiced some time ago by Mr. John Craig at the Central Experiment farm, Ottawa. The trees are planted in the hexagonal fashion, each tree being 35 feet from every other. The bushes are check rowed in the rectangular fashion, the rows in one direction being 6 feet wide and, in the other direction 5 feet 10 inches. As the trees increase in size the bushes inside the circles are the first to be removed.

Mr. Craig now thinks this plan too complicated. The square system of planting is simpler than the hexagonal system (which is also called the triangular or quincunx), and it is generally adopted on cheap lands and in orchards on a vast scale.

The hexagonal system seems more complicated at first, but it is more economical of space, and is therefore the better system for high priced lands. The more valuable the land the more ingenious and complicated the plans are likely to be. The plan illustrated would seem wasteful to a raspberry specialist. In the figure the berry bushes are 6 feet by 5 feet 10 inches. In general cultivation black raspberries are set 3 feet by 6 feet and reds 3 feet by 6 feet. A specialist can plant closer.

Growing Brussels Sprouts.

These require the same treatment as cabbage. The soil must be rich and contain considerable moisture. If the small sprouts do not grow rapidly, they will be tough. Sow seed in a hotbed and transplant or scatter seed in hills and thin. Give the plants plenty of room. Have the rows 30 inches apart and the plants two feet apart. Ordinary culture will suffice. Sprouts half an inch in diameter are thought to be more palatable than larger ones. The top leaves are sometimes used as greens. Among the best varieties are Improved Dwarf, Improved Matchless and Paris Market.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Watering Apparatus for Melons.

A bulletin of the Georgia station on watermelons describes a simple method of rendering concentrated fertilizer assimilable or available and preventing the hill from firing. This is by the application of water artificially, when the rainfall proves insufficient. For this purpose a joint of two inch terra cotta sewer pipe is perpendicularly sunk in the hill before planting to the depth of six or eight inches, bell upward, as indicated in the figure.

The seeds are planted around the pipe and the stand subsequently thinned down to one vine, whose roots will eventually surround the bottom of the pipe for quite a distance in all directions. The pipe itself should be filled with water late in the afternoon—every day, if the weather is dry, or as often as may be found necessary. The continuous supply of moisture thus afforded will have a most noticeable effect by vendering every particle of plant food within reach capable of assimilation. Ordinary drain tile may be used in place of sewer pipe.

TIMOTHY AND CLOVER HAY.

Their Fattening and Strength Giving Qualities Compared.

The nutritive value of timothy hay is the subject of some discussion at present, it being unfavorably compared with that of clover hay. On this point The American Cultivator expresses the following views: It is rather surprising that timothy hay keeps its popularity so well as it does. As its best its nutritive value is much less than clover. But very little timothy grass is cut early enough to be at its best, because the majority of customers prefer it after it has fully formed its seed and has passed the flowering stage. Timothy then has largely changed the richer juices which the green timothy possesses into a woody fiber that is little better than so much straw. At its best and cut before flowering timothy contains of its dry matter possibly 4 or 5 per cent of albuminoids. But timothy grass cut thus young dries down to less than half the bulk it will make if cut two or three weeks later. Consequently no farmer is willing to cut it early.

Where timothy hay is fed without grain, as it is on most farms, while horses are not working, it is very poor and uneconomical feed. We sometimes hear complaints that horses grow poor and show rough, staring coats while they have timothy hay always in the racks or mangers, though they have nothing to do. Those same horses will flesh up and even fatten when set to work in the spring, when some of the hay is cut and fed, moistened with a mixture of corn and oatmeal. This, we think, is a better feed for horses that have timothy than is cut hay and cornmeal. Timothy is very deficient in fattening properties as well as in the nutrition for giving strength. When some clover is mixed with the timothy, oats are a better grain to grind, to be mixed as cut feed than is corn and oats. If the hay is all clover, horses for farm work will do well on it without any grain, though they will even then be somewhat more efficient if given a small amount of oats with the hay.

It is only the careless feeding of clover hay which makes it unpopular with horsemen. It is never disliked by horses and cows. Indeed the trouble is that horses like it too well, and if given all they can eat will gorge themselves so full that in hard working or fast driving the gorged stomach will press against the lung. There is almost always some dust with clover hay because being highly nitrogenous, the clover heats too much and some of it is burned, which makes it very dusty. This with horses whose wind has already been injured by fast driving or an over loaded stomach, produces cough and the disease called "heaves."

Relations Between Insects and Fungi.

Insects may be the means of spreading fungous disease, and fungi may so enfeeble plants as to make them an easy prey to insects. Flea beetles, blister beetles (old fashioned potato bugs) and the larvæ of the Colorado potato beetle not only make entering places for potato blight germs, but may actually carry the infection from one plant to another. Probably the flea beetle is the worst offender of all because of the numerous punctures which it makes in the leaves. With plum and cherry trees the case is reversed. Fungi attack the leaves, causing them to drop prematurely, thus weakening the trees and rendering them an easy prey to the bark beetle.

Similar relations between insects and fungi may not be evident in all cases, but the necessity of treating both cannot be too strongly emphasized, for very often when one is allowed to go unchecked and the other destroyed the work is partially or wholly lost. This may often happen when the reason is not apparent to an untrained observer. Whenever there is any probability that insects and fungi are both present the Ohio station recommends the use of a combined fungicide and insecticide, for which it prefers a mixture of resinate of soda and bordeaux mixture.

A Convenient Pigpen.

Pigs grow best if kept out of doors on the grass during the summer. They will get much of their living from the grass also. Therefore The Farm Journal recommends making a movable pen like that shown in the cut, and the pigs can then be moved daily to new ground. A cloth shelter will give a shady place in the heat of the day and protection also from sudden showers.

Agricultural Brevities.

A very little work in stirring the soil when weeds first begin to appear above ground will save great labor and trouble later on.

It is claimed that during 1897 $9,200,000 worth of nuts came into the United States from foreign countries.

An Iowa station bulletin says that for commercial sugar making a beet is required containing not less than 12 per cent pure sugar, with purity coefficient of not less than 80 per cent.

Experiments in forcing lettuce in pots indicate that as regards the weight of the crop pot culture is a disadvantage, but marketing in pots has marked advantages over ordinary methods.

Farms in at the rate of a pound to 30 or 40 gallons of water has been found by Bolley and Close to be very effective in preventing standing scurts of wheat and loose smut of oats.

W. H. Swingle of the department of agriculture states that in treating oats for smut by either potassium sulphide or hot water an increase in yield is obtained beyond and above the amount that would result from replacing the smutted heads with sound ones.

Not Advice.

There were two women sitting together at the corner. One was round and plump and healthy, the other was thin and apparently sick. It was evident that the one who was not so healthy had been telling her troubles to the one who had probably never been in any other state, and she was receiving sympathy and advice so obviously given that no passer could help it overhear it.

"Then, gently," said the well one, "and don't take any medicine. You are perfectly well you know, and God is love."—Boston Budget.

The quarterly meeting of the King's Daughters' Union will be held this afternoon at four o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Stone at the Y. M. C. A. as usual. The board of Managers will meet at the Home at three.

Mr. P. H. Glynn, the dashing and popular representative of the Boston house of Partridge & Co., who did furnish the fireworks last night, gave his personal attention to the arrangements, interesting himself in a manner that was appreciated.

Many Bangor and Oldtown people will visit Northport Sunday, on which day the steamer Catherine, with the Oldtown band, will give an excursion to that place, also landing at the first Spring, will also land at Hampden and Winterport. Tickets are only 50 cents and may be had of Mountain's drug store this city.

Tuesday is Epworth League convention excursion day and a fine trip is offered to Moosehead Lake and K. pod. The train leaves at 6.30 A. M. and returns in time to reach Bangor at 7.45, giving ten hours at Kineo. The tickets are limited to 300 and may be had at the Bangor, Orono and Oldtown ticket offices.

BANGOR SANITARIUM.

The names of the officers, appended to the advertisement of the Bangor Sanitarium, are sufficient guaranty of business ability and honorable methods in the management of that institution. The system of treatment for the liquor or narcotic habits, and allied nervous diseases, known as the "Springer method," has been for some time employed with signal success in institutions of the character in Massachusetts, notably those at Lynn and at Woburn, and the special advantage claimed for it, being that the treatment builds up the general health of the patient, and neither takes him from his business nor leaves him physically or mentally prostrated. With thoroughly scientific care and treatment for its patients and reliable business management, there seems no reason to doubt why the sanitarium which Dr. Springer has established here should not prove a successful venture and a benefit to the city.

GLASS FRUIT JARS.

Its a wonder where so many glass fruit jars do come each season so Bangor can be used. H. H. Noble & Co. were yesterday unloading a solid car load and they sometimes have several carloads in a single season. These jars are made in New York State and come direct to Bangor without rehandling.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

First District Convention Successfully Opened in Bangor on Tuesday Afternoon in First M. E. Church.

Interesting Reports of Officers.

Greetings, Response and Able Sermon by Rev. Levi Gilbert, of New London, Conn., in the Evening.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the First General District Epworth League convention for the eighth district meeting opened in Bangor at the Pine street M. E. church with a large attendance of delegates from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. The president, Rev. W. T. Perkins, D. D., of Boston, presided.

The session opened with a "Love Feast," under leadership of Rev. Dr. G. S. Lindsay, of Waterville.

The administration of the Lord's Supper was conducted by President Perrin.

The business of the convention began with the annual reports of the members of the cabinet.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

President Perrin in his report said:

The work to me as president has become a good joy and a great delight to be brought in close relation with the young people. We have had delightful harmony in the cabinet and we have endeavored to plan and execute wisely. It would be delight for me to continue in the office, but other considerations compel me to withdraw my name for the position. The resilient hand written for Zion's Herald and made other contributions and proposed at the Ocean Grove. This is the first biennial convention which we have held. I think that the movement to increase the comprehensiveness and high value has been an excellent one. The Epworth League has been put upon a sound financial condition. We have made a change in the monthly issue of the Zion's Herald, for the Epworth League placing it in charge of Mr. Upham. Mrs. Gates, in charge of the literary department, has continued to furnish news for the press—a work of value. Other officers in the cabinet have done good work.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The report of the secretary, Rev. Luther Freeman, of Portland, reviews the progress of the work in the 17 months since the last convention of the First District convention in Providence. The district contains 722 chapters, distributed as follows: East Maine, 86; Maine, 79; New Hampshire, 90; Vermont, 94; New England, 224; N. E. Southern, 149. The membership is approximately as follows: East Maine, 2550; Maine, 3860; New Hampshire, 3482; Vermont, 4260; New England, 16,085; N. E. Southern, 9850; total 41,087. In addition to this there are some 20 Christian Endeavor societies.

Some of the smaller leagues are being awakened along the line of possibility of development in the intellectual departments and the reading and Chautauqua courses. He thought a junior league or its equivalent ought to be established in every Methodist church, and that the leagues must take better care of the children.

Mr. Freeman suggested less conventions and better ones. He counselled greater attention paid to the details of the programs. He also suggested uniformity in the election of officers throughout the district, and said that an interval should elapse between election and installation.

A brief statistical summary, concerning the collection of annual dues:

For the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1897, there were 682 chapters reported, of them 506, or 74.2 per cent., paid, leaving 82 unpaid, 32 expressed themselves as unable to pay, one withdrew, and one left no report, 42 neither paid nor reported, 92 which did not pay the greater portion of these having paid no attention whatever to any repeated calls. An examination of the statistics by conferences shows that the New Hampshire conference takes the place in payment of dues, 67 of the 80 chapters, making 84 per cent., but 83.8 per cent., and the New England northern conference is second with 147 chapters—121 paid, 82.3 per cent., and the New England conference third, 214 chapters—160 paid, 74.8 per cent. Considered the more at home, the record by conference districts we find, to be as follows: The Vermont district, New Hampshire conference, leads the van with 20 chapters—20 paid, 100 per cent.; the east district, of New England conference is second, 54 chapters—48 paid, 88.9 per cent.; the north district of the same conference is third, 47 chapters, 41 paid, 87.2 per cent.

A similar comparison, to the above for the current year ending Sept. 30, 1898, reveals 722 chapters reported for, the entire district, 326 of them having enrolled themselves with the treasurer, or 44.9 per cent., 32 expressing their inability to pay, leaving 360 yet to hear from. By conferences the New England northern leads the van thus far this year, 71 of the 149 chapters paying or 47.1 per cent. The New England conference is second, 114 of the 221 chapters paying or 50.3 per cent. The New Hampshire conference third, 44 chapters of the 80 making, set forward or 48.9 per cent. The Norwich district of the New England Southern Conference leads the conference districts, 27 of the 38 chapters having paid or 57.8 per cent. The North District of the New England Conference is second with 49 chapters, 31 paid or 63.3 per cent., and the Providence District of the New England southern conference is third with 47 chapters—23 paid, 59.6 per cent.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed)
Edward M. Wheeler, Treasurer.

REPORT OF FIRST VICE PRESIDENT.

First Vice President Rev. H. O. Thayer, of Woodforde, reported that there was chance for improvement in prayer meetings and that he had done all in his power to aid in touch with officers at chapters. He thought a more active change in conducting the spiritual department of the prayer meeting.

He suggested more out of door meetings. He thought the young people should be stirred up in the spiritual life.

REV. MR. SPENCER'S REPORT.

The Mercy and Help department is organic in the structure of the Epworth League. The institution of this department was a deliberate return to primitive Methodism. It is indicative, also, of the most striking characteristic of modern Christianity—helpfulness. "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister" is its watchword and its summons.

The work that has come to me as chairman of this department may be classified, roughly, as correspondence, consultation and correspondence. Of the latter I have had, in the aggregate, 75 letters. I have been permitted me with help of the ripe experience of others to answer some inquiries. I have written sixty letters. Until the league number of the Zion's Herald was put into the able hands of my friend E. I furnished a short article each month.

The cabinet meetings which constitute the most important branch of consultation have been to me a source of inspiration and of great practical helpfulness. I believe them to be a potent factor in the success of the League of our district. I have attended every cabinet meeting and during my term of office.

The able and self-sacrificing service of our brothers and sisters in the University settlement, Boston, has been constantly in my thought. I spent two days at the Epworth League House, 34 Hull street, in the autumn of '96, making, so far as possible, a study of the needs and opportunities of the work. I have sought to impress our chapters with the importance of the Christian activity and to be responsibly for it. I have given to work outside chiefly to those in and conferences of which I have delegates, 27 in the four northern New England States.

In all ways I have sought to hold myself carefully subject to the calls of duty. It has been a richly paid labor of love. My information leads to the conclusion that very generally the chapters are engaging in the beneficent work of mercy and help. In many places there is increasingly aggressive action. In place of the Christian life demands more imperatively faithfulness, hopefulness, loveliness, and perseverance. The outlook is full of promise.

Respectfully submitted,
Geo. H. Spencer.

REPORT OF REV. MR. JUDKINS.

Rev. C. O. Judkins of Wilson, VI, fourth vice president, reported appreciation of Zion's Herald and referred to the importance of social work. The department

SEÑOR SAGASTA'S FIRST OBJECT.

Will Condition Everything to Save Dynasty—The Republican Movement.

(Special Cable Despatch to the New York Sun.)

London, July 2. The Spanish government has decided to invite the fall of San Juan before adopting a definite policy with regard to the war and the internal crisis. The only point settled relative to the Sagasta Ministry is that it will make the support of the present dynasty the supreme object of its action. Everything will be held in abeyance. Sagasta feel, rightly, that the time for peace, will preserve the war, according to which course seems best designed to defeat the plots and conspiracies against the throne. The Conservative leaders are inclined to co-operate in this policy. They, or, if they take other ground, or in a so-called national cabinet, will use all their energy to defeat the Carlist and Romish run conspiracy.

It can no longer be denied that the crisis is in serious danger even from the point of view of public opinion. The loyalty has been severely tested by military reverses in the past forty weeks, and the opposition to the Austrian Regent had even to the Young King is now outspoken, especially in northern Spain, where the Carlists have the strongest following. The personal character of Don Carlos serves to some extent to counterbalance the influence of his cousin, and it has been openly suggested recently that he might be invited to resign his claims in favor of his young son.

But the Republican following has made the greatest strides in popularity in the past week or two. It has taken the form of a federation movement, which is extremely popular, especially in Catalonia. It would be by no means surprising if the revolutionary spirit in Spain should lead the country to territorial disintegration. Spain, although not large, is the least homogeneous nation in Europe. Intercommunication is most difficult and primitive. The differences in the local dialects are almost equivalent to differences of language. There are only two decent roads in a week between the two principal cities, Madrid and Barcelona. Political interests are also locally divided, so that the demand for local self-government, or at least for independence, in several provinces appeals strongly to the masses.

Barcelona, in the recent petitions sent to the government demonstrations, is animated for peace. The most and most significant development is the speech made yesterday by Señor Robledo, the brilliant Republican leader in the Cortes. He indicates that he is likely to cast his lot with the Federalists. The government fears this movement above all and is prepared to use the second military division against it. The result of such a collision is still impossible to estimate, for nobody knows what attitude the army will take. Gen. Martinez Campos is popular, but it is known that he is willing and even desirous to assume a military dictatorship.

There is the impression in Madrid, according to Madrid advices, which is to be that Sagasta will [illegible] the [illegible] peace as soon as the news of the fall of Santiago is received. The Queen is a popular favorite, and it is expected she will resign in favor of a Regent and for Martinez Campos and his temporary dictatorship. But no one is or out of Spain knows what will be done, for republican elements dominate the situation, and Premier Sagasta of all others is unable to estimate their rival influence and strength.

There is little doubt that the report of the proposed despatch of Commodore Watson's squadron to bombard the Spanish coast towns had the effect to check the secret sentiment in Spain. It aroused the bulldog feature of the Spanish character and produced a revival of the anti-Belgic talk about three years of war, never surrender, etc., a sort of talk that had entirely disappeared during the past month. The latest report of Watson's sailing for Manila, that he will pursue and fight Camara's squadron wherever found, is beginning to recover optimism among the Spanish politicians. Prominent persons in Spain believe that Cushing will overtake the Spanish ships, or at least pursue, return to Spain. The impression seems general in Madrid and without Spain that the presence of the government is to prevent, if possible, the remaining Spanish ships from falling into the hands of the United States, even by the terms of peace. A curious circumstance tending to confirm this view has just come to my knowledge.

Camara's squadron includes one or two converted liners which are not fully armed for war in Spain. There are many such ships in Spanish ports, all of which have been insured in English offices. A Spanish agent visited the insurance companies this week to inquire the terms of renewal of the insurance upon these vessels on condition that they lie in neutral ports, probably Mediterranean. My informant suggested that perhaps Spain's intent is to put all such vessels in neutral ports with a view to defeating an American demand in the peace negotiations for the delivery of the vessels by Spain to the United States.

One of today's reports from Madrid is that the real destination of Camara's fleet is some Asiatic port where it can escape American seizure.

One salutary idea seems to have taken possession of Spanish politicians of all parties, namely, that when the time comes to sue for peace by far the best plan will be to deal directly with Washington, not through any intermediary. It is widely assumed at Madrid that not only would the best terms thus be obtained, but Spain would also avoid paying a heavy international brokerage in some form.

Europe is speculating almost as freely on the United States regarding the intentions of the German Emperor at Manila. The prevailing confidence of Secretary Day and President McKinley in the Emperor's good faith is by no means shared on this side by the countries which are sympathetic or hostile to the United States. But there is no doubt the decision of value regarding the ultimate object of Germany's naval demonstration lies in Berlin. Marquis Mecomi-Venosta, the retiring Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, was asked yesterday what he thought about the prospective bombardment of the Spanish forts by the American warships. He replied that he did not believe that Europe would move heaven to prevent it. Remember, he said, that any power which would venture to interfere would thereby violate the neutrality and become hostile not only to Spain, but also to all means with the United States. There is no such single power in Europe which would risk such a step for Spain or for any other consideration."

Frank L. Phillips died at his home in Greenville on Friday at the age of 42. He leaves two small children and a brother, Capt. A. G. Phillips, of Bangor. Funeral services were held on Sunday.
